The Mining Pribram symposia have been organised here since 1961, specialised international meetings on geoethics - application of ethics in the fields of geology, mining and energetic - since 1992.

In 2009 the section will take place again together with a joint meeting of the Working Group for Geoethics established by AGID (the Association of Geoscientists for International Development - www.bgs.ac.uk/agid/).

Details follow in the further text; registration form can be used from the last page. Many thanks for informing your colleagues who may be interested.

GEOETHICS - MOSCOW 2009:

9-th International Conference
New Ideas in the Earth Sciences
April 14 – 17, 2009 - Moscow

Information: www.msgpa.edu.ru (in the Russian language)

The traditional section No. 30 on GEOETHICS

has been included into the program of the conference on April 15. Following information has been received from N. Nikitina and S. Peppoloni who were among the participants of the section.

Altogether 19 abstracts have been published in the Conference Proceedings (mostly in the Russian language) by authors from Russia, Belarus, Czech Republic, Italy and Ukraine. The section was prepared by L. P. Ryzhova, corresponding member of the International Academy of Mineral Resources. Altogether 22 persons from 4 countries attended the meeting, almost all of them presenting papers.

Theoretical aspects of geoethics developed by the Ukrainian scientist V. Gur consider the Earth and its resources not only as something useful but also as something belonging to morality and values what makes it possible to respect the Earth, the nature, the man and the society as the final goal.

A high interest – expressed also by a large discussion - was given especially to the following papers:

M. Kuzmin, A. Krasavin, L. Ryzhova: Sustainable development of mining and geological productions and of trend technologies as a basis for geoethics of mineral resources; the authors discussed problems of responsibility as well as rationality principles in the course of developing mineral deposits.

S. Peppoloni in her paper “Reflection cues on the cultural and social responsibility of the geologist in the third millennium” presented some geoethical aspects (responsibility of scientists – geologists) as well as an immediate application of geoethical concepts for real geological events using a case story of the recent earthquake in the Italian province Abruzzo.

Nataliya Nikitina in her paper “Ethical components of managerial decisions in conditions of the general economic crisis” presented a possibility for the period of economic crisis to create and develop a new economic system the aim of which will be replacing the profit by establishing a common good and wellbeing important for the society.

Other interesting specific problems were discussed as well (e.g. a new methodology to get drinking water in Moscow etc.).
